Research and experience have shown the role of the financial sector in economic development and the role of law in financial sector development. Economies are now faced with a plethora of international treaties, standards and models from which to draw. However, a question that remains is the role of culture, both legal and otherwise, in devising appropriate legal structures to support financial sector development. This meeting will provide an opportunity for high-level discussions on the role of law and culture in financial sector development, with a focus on China in the context of other experience.
