Seminar

If There is Another Eurozone Sovereign Restructuring ...

Mitu Gulati

Duke Law School

Monday, 9 July 2012

1:00 – 2:00 pm

Room 201, 2/F Main Building, University of Hong Kong

The talk will tackle the question of what the next Eurozone sovereign restructuring, if it happens, will look like. The Greek restructuring went off relatively smoothly (as these things go). But investors have adjusted and, in particular, foreign investors have largely exited local law Eurozone sovereign bonds. That, in turn, means that the Greek technique will not work for the next Eurozone sovereign that needs to restructure. A new set of techniques will have to be devised.

Mitu Gulati is on the faculty at the Duke Law School. One of his areas of research currently is sovereign debt finance, in particular, the topic of restructuring sovereign bond contracts.
